British Gold stamp in the United States.

The New York Tribune speaks earnestly of the multiplied evidences of the fact that British money is brought to bear upon our elections.

and that the London leaders and editors are willing to receive and appropriate this money for this iniquitous purpose. In thus distributing their money, the Tribune remarks, "English manufacturers and their agents wish to break down the Tariff. We do not believe in it. It is our people who will be in fault if they succeed."

They are looking out for themselves; let us be equally faithful to our own. Happily, we have the decision of the question in our own hands, and it will be our fault if their money, their authority, or their falsehoods shall succeed in breaking down the protection of our industry."

The press in New York City has been liberally supplied with funds and documents by thousands distributed at much less than cost.

A view of the present aim and object of the press in New York City, is thus summed up by the Tribune:—To disgorge American and magnify British production; to make American manufacturers odious by exaggerated, and often false statements of the prices and profits of particular establishments; intended to give the impression that such are the usual profits of Manufacturing—than which nothing can be more unbounded—these are the daily occupations of the Lococeo press."

The struggle is coming. The Republican infamy of the mass of our people is to be tried. The force of British money in directing the election of our officers, the legislation of our country, the policy of our nation, is to triumph or meet a rebuke as effective as our patriotic fathers gave British arms. Much as we have seen and heard of the corrupt and distasteful yielding of the leaders of Lococeo, the prime ministers of apostles, to the bait of gold, we will not, cannot doubt the virtue of the mass of the people—of those men interested in a good government and the support of American industry. British gold, and promises did indeed corrupt and overcome Ireland, but with this awful example before the freemen of America it cannot be that they will yield to the tempting but deadly glitter of the bribe to make our country dependent upon her commercial policy.

Freemen of the United States—Lovers of an independent government—let me emphatically declare—no man can corrupt you from fidelity, noble, vigorous effort to maintain her a free government and a national policy suited to our country and people. Look well to the principles, measures, declarations and action of parties: vote understandingly, and honestly, and all will be well and worth the croaking arm of British money. British legislation shall be able to crush the country or break away to trial independence of our people.

It was stated at a late meeting of the Farmers' Club in New York, that according to the opinion of Mr. Knight, of Kentucky—the new mode of robbing water heated to one hundred and sixty degrees of Fahrenheit, funds an entirely new staple of that valuable fibre—it becomes silky—more delicate and beautiful than the finest flax—when the process is properly carried into execution, the new article will supersede Cotton. Now as cotton is confined to certain warm latitudes, and as hemp grows in the greatest portion of the Earth—it certainly presents a new idea of the future clothing of the world. Theory is sold very good—but to the growth of hemp—there is the want of proof of its capabilities in New York.

Hemp grows luxuriantly in this soil, as any one can see by visiting Harlow Street.

Quite a Museum.

Our City Marshal, Mr. Walker, whose success in ridding out rogues and bringing them to justice, has never been equaled in this State, keeps an office on West Market Place. In the arrangement of his office he has an eye to the beautiful, as well as the useful. He seems to have a place for every thing and every thing in its place, ordering the prevailing law. The walls are ornamented with several specimens of oil painting, but what is of most interest to the community is the fact that he has quite a museum of articles taken from thieves' holes. Gold watches down to tooth picks and trinkets down to pocket handkerchiefs—a great variety of articles all of more or less value. Of course it would not be proper for us to give a complete list of these articles, as they yet remain undivided by the owners, and a full description might lead to their being wrongfully claimed. This much however we will do, recommend to our citizens who have lost any articles to them, to call upon Mr. Walker and give him a full and accurate description of them and possibly they may be found to them by the Finance Committee within fifteen days from this date.

The Lesson of the Maine Election.

Under this head, it is not my intention to offer many excuses, for the failure of the Whigs of Maine in our recent election. But friends are always anxious to know what went wrong. Result—That the chairman and secretaries of the General Committee be instructed to ask for and urge the removal of all persons holding appointments under the present administration of this State who will pay to the Finance Committee a sum of money, and report to them by the Finance Committee within fifteen days from this date.

Mechanics Association Social Meetings.

The social meeting and collision of the Bangor Mechanics Association on Thursday evening was numerously attended and universally enjoyed. It was one of the happiest social gatherings that our people have been favored with for a long time. Members of the associations generally, with their wives and several invited guests were present. The meeting was called to order by the President, when the committee on providing business referred to the substance of what was to be transacted.

After partaking of refreshments, several songs were sung by our best singers favored the company with a full description of what was to be transacted.
